Canada Bans Imports From Soviet Russia

On Ground That Goods Were Produced by Forced Labor.

One of the most widely discussed acts of the Bennett Government is the recent order-council banning imports of furs, lumber, coal, pulpwood, fish and grain into Canada from Russia.

The action was a definite response to an alleged trade offer from Russia whereby the Soviets agreed to buy certain machinery in Canada, provided Canada permitted the importation of Russian coal. Such coal was sent into Canada in large quantities last year and the question of an embargo upon it was under consideration when importers suspended the movement for the winter months.

In addition to dealing with the question the Government now lays down a general policy. Evidence of persuasive character has been forthcoming to show that the products banned are largely produced by forced labor, or in any event in labor which is paid a few cents per day—the average is said to be 28 cents. The position taken is that admission of such goods in competition with Canadian products must inevitably mean a lowering of Canadian standards of living, if not the destruction of industries and consequently larger unemployment difficulties.

The broader economic question was raised as to the wisdom of helping Russia to make a success of her five year plan by absorbing her products. Obviously the action of no one country could be more than a minor factor in the eventual outcome of the experiment and Canada's policy represents what the Government believes to be the best interest of Canadians rather than an incursion into soviet affairs.

A point which has been raised by opponents of the Government is that Canada in need of export markets, is deprived of this soviet business by the Government's action. This is not entirely true. The soviet need, among other things, farm machinery, Canada makes good farm machinery and there is nothing in the world to prevent it's soviet buying it. But when the price of buying it is to throw Canadian labor into direct competition with soviet and soviet labor, the Bennett Government says the cost is high.

There was also the cost of the thrown out with the bath water that Russia, if the prohibition was accepted by Canada, would agree to a conference on wheat markets. There is nothing in the history of world governments so far as the prohibition to buy soviet goods is concerned. A conference, of course, means nothing. Any conference which is not held in the world has been observed not to have entered the interests of government in countries it. And any agreement would most undoubtedly be the harbinger of a web of their economic agreements upon Canada.

He says that it is not as if during the past week Madam Queen has proved to East Sober and also informs that that Fish did the moving.

Change in Weather Was Very General

Heavy Snow Falls in Europe and America.

The sudden change in the weather which struck here last Monday and Tuesday appears to have been general all over the world. On Monday England experienced its worst snow storm in 20 years. Snowfall in France caused deaths and destruction by swollen rivers. Ontario had its worst storm in 50 years and New York its worst in 10 years. New England states and the middle west were also snow bound.

All over Canada the air mail service was seriously hampered. The snow fall here, was very slight and although the temperature dropped considerably it was not very much below zero.

Mrs. E. H. Waller received word last week that the home of her brother, J. Gilmor, who farms near Innisfail, were completely destroyed by fire.

Mrs. Dumas was taken to the hospital last week end suffering from an attack of flu. Her many friends here will be glad to learn that she is now much better.

Jack Slesions, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Slesions, had the misfortune to break his leg while playing around the plant last Monday.

Under the auspices of the Ladies Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion here will have a sale of work and a afternoon tea to be held in the Cliff, Hall on April 21st, 1931 from 3 to 6 p.m. Keep this date in mind.

Major Herridge is a son of the late Rev. W. T. Herridge of Ottawa.

A FISH STORY

Some fishermen up at Newell Lake have a large pond in which they keep fish alive after catching them out of the lake. Heber McKimur is one of these fishermen. He had a number of fish safely enclosed in one of his ponds and the other morning he went out to his pond for breakfast. Heber made a nice cast but just as he got the larriat snugly located behind the gills of the big fish on which is eye was on, the funny monster took a submarine notion and headed for the bottom of the pond. Alas for Heber. In the excitement he forgot to let go of the larriat and Heber, larriat, fish and all, torpedoed through, around and across the pool. After Heber smelt and heard the fish sizzling in the pan on the stove he was heard to remark: "I told you this was a wet moon."

A Story of Fifty Years

"Montreal, February 16.—Fifty years ago today incorporation of the Canadian Pacific Railway took place. George Stephen, afterwards Lord Mount Stephen, was the company's first president. The company deposited with the Dominion Government, at Ottawa, a cheque for $1,000,000 as a guarantee that it would fulfil its contract to complete the railway to the Pacific Coast. This pledge was completed in five years instead of the ten the contract called for."

This brief but significant news despatch appeared in the daily newspapers of Canada on February 16 last. It recalls an historic incident, a milestone in the history not only of Canada but of the world. It not only carries the mind back, but, because of all that backward glance disclosed, inevitably forces the mind forward to a contemplation of what the next fifty years may unfold. It impresses one with the tremendous developments and possibilities of a span of only fifty years.

Fifty years ago the project of a transcontinental railway across Canada was viewed with scepticism by thousands in Canada, and was regarded as the maddest kind of a venture in Great Britain. Men prominent in public affairs declared it would never earn its sale greatness. The country it was to traverse was described as a wilderness, partly desert, incapable of successful cultivation and settlement by white men, followed by miles of snow-capped mountain peaks and ranges.

That success rather than failure followed the great undertaking can be credited to a few stout-hearted, far-seeing men who were veritable giants in energy, resource, and grim, unshakable determination. In some respects they were rubies; their methods were not always above suspicion, but they had a vision and a driving force to achieve their goal regardless of any and all obstacles. Individually they staked their all on the success of the enterprise, obliterated the word "failure" from their lexicon, and won. Canada, the world, knows the result.

The railway made a new nation. It opened up an empire. It altered the trade routes of the world. It brought the Orient to the Occident, and the Occident to the Orient. The enterprise initiated fifty years ago by a new-born Dominion of a few millions of people, has amazed the world. It has become the greatest transportation system in the world, with its fixed beds of steel not only crossing and criss-crossing Canada, and extending well into the United States, but with its vessels navigating the seven seas, calling at all ports of all nations, and circumnavigating the globe.

The Canadian Pacific Railway has helped to make Canada what it is. It has made and unmade Canadian Governments. The history of the Canadian Pacific is in part the history of modern Canada. The success of the railway has been bound up in the development, the prosperity, the success of this Dominion. The management of the railway has never recognized that fact, and it has been pre-Canadian at all times and in all its policies. It has made mistakes, of course; it has been selfish, even dictatorial at times, but it has always been magnificent.

The Canadian Pacific has been created and developed under the presidency of four men, Sir George Stephen (later Lord Mount Stephen), Sir William Van Horne, Sir Thomas (later Lord) Shaughnessy, and Mr. Edward W. Beatty. The history of the railway may likewise be divided into four periods, or possibly three as the first two merge into one. First the period of organization of the company, early financing, and actual construction under Stephen and Van Horne; second, the period of well organized, highly efficient operation under Shaughnessy, with well defined policies of branch line construction as feeders, opening new territory, and the establishment of mercantile nests and overseas service; third, and coupled with a vigorous continuation of the Shaughnessy policies, what may be termed, in the absence of a better word, the diplomatic period under Beatty wherein up-to-date railroading has been strengthened by securing the goodwill, the admiration, the co-operation of the public generally, and the elimination of those feelings of suspicion and antagonism which constituted marked the relations of the people and the railway in the earlier days.

And in the story of these fifty years there is not a lesson and an inspiration for the people of Canada? The railway had its periods of drought and depression, just as individuals and nations experience them, but it surmounted them. The makers of the Canadian Pacific did not shorten their vision to a year or two, or five or ten years; they looked into the future and planned and built with courage and confidence. They have had their reward. So, too, should the Canadian people maintain the forward look, act with courage and decision, remain confident. Canada has done great things in the past; it can do greater things in the years to come.

When Food SOURS
 About two hours after eating many people suffer from sour stomachs. They call it indigestion. It means that the stomach nerves have been overstimulated. This is due to the acid. The way to correct it is to take an alkali, which neutralizes many times its volume in acid. The right way is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia—just a tasteless liquid, pleasant, efficient, and harmless. But it kills excess acids. It has remained the standard with physicians for more than 50 years. It is the quick method. Results come almost instantly. It is the approved method. You will never use another when you know. Be sure to get genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Beware of cheap imitations. Physicians for over fifty years in correcting stomach acids. Ask bottles—ask druggists. The genuine is always a liquid—it is never made in tablet form. So look for the name Phillips on wrapper and bottle.

A Scientific Mystery

Source Of Comets Rays Has Not Been Discovered
 Discovery of comets rays in sunshine—the same rays that penetrate about 700 feet into earth—is described in advices received at New York from Vienna.

The communication is from Prof. E. Spath, president of the Chemical and Physical Society, and is seen to clear a misunderstanding about the report made recently to the society of Prof. Victor J. Hess, of the University of Graz.

Vienna dispatches had it that Professor Hess announced the discovery of cosmic rays and that his talk created a sensation among scientists.

But Prof. Spath points out that Dr. Hess did not claim to have discovered cosmic rays, which were found 18 years ago, but that he had evidence that a small percentage of these rays come from the sun.

Their origin has been one of the great scientific mysteries. The fact that most electroscopes used to detect them showed as many at night as in the day was held by some scientists to eliminate the sun as a source.

Pauline Conner, F. C. Mr. Elford has also been asked to take charge of organization of the Canadian delegation to Rome. American Films In Britain

Eighty-Five Per Cent. Of Motion Picture Films Shown In England Are Of American Origin

Eighty-five per cent. of the motion picture films shown in England are of American origin, and only 7 1/2 per cent. British, Colonel John A. Cooper, president of the British Picture Distributors of Canada, testified before the investigation into affairs of the motion picture industry in Canada at Toronto. Investigation is continuing on affairs of the Famous Players Canadian Corporation and its subsidiary companies.

Only about 30 Canadian pictures had been made since 1918, Col. Cooper stated.

Looking For Samples

A Scot received a complimentary ticket to the motor show. Stopping in front of a magnificent limousine, he casually inquired the price. It was $9,000. Sandy shuddered and moved on. The next car he came to was $6,500; he passed on and saw one priced at $2,000, $1,000, $750 and $500. At the end of the row were a few of the "baby" type. Sandy looked at the salesman hopefully. "Are these your free samples?" he asked.

Links With The Past

Scientists Constantly Learning New Facts About Climate and Vegetation

Buried forests, the vestiges of past ages, come to light now and then to reveal new facts to the scientists about climate and vegetation. Trees which are known to exist today only in tropical climates have been found far beneath the surface in temperate or Arctic sections, indicating that a climatic shift in their growth existed in these regions at some time.

Tree fossils have been found in Antarctica, for example, and their discovery indicates that the Antarctic Continent, now in its ice age, possessed a temperate climate in remote ages. Possibly it once supported a varied plant and animal fauna.

A recent discovery of similar significance was made in Northern Alberta, where a government engineer of the Canadian Department of Mines came upon several fossil trees. Their age was estimated at between 15,000, 20,000 and 30,000 years. The real importance of the discovery, however, lies in the fact that at least one of the trees is of a type that grows today in Japan, according to Dr. I. W. Bailey of Harvard University. This is considered evidence that North America and Asia were at one time joined.

One feature of the discovery in Alberta was the fact that the trees were in a state of perfect preservation. The growth rings could be counted, the leaves were in fair condition and the wood could be cut with a jack-knife. It seldom happens that plant or animal fossils are found so well preserved.

In most cases the fossil trees decay very rapidly, before a protective layer of sand or clay can fall over them, while the hard parts are changed chemically. In animals it is frequently found that the material inside the bones has been replaced by silica or some other mineral.

Leprosy Being Cured

Eleven Patients Recently Released From U.S. Institution

Quietly, as ships long docked slip out into a strange sea, nine men and two women have left the government leprosy station at Cayville, Louisiana, to face a world which some of them have not seen for two decades.

Some carried a tiny check which money could not buy—a certificate attesting they have been cured of leprosy, a disease dreaded and shunned since Biblical times. Some will take new names and make new lives—the government will ask no questions. Their departure—brightening the hope of 330 other patients—will bring the total number to be released in the last few years to 85.

Soviet Plan A Failure

Engineer Says Five-Year Idea Has Entirely Collapsed

Philip Harty and Mrs. Harty, of Newark, N.J., stepped down the gang-plank of the liner New York and heaved hearty sighs of relief. They were back where shoes cost less than $60 a pair, and butter not quite 66 a pound. They had come back from Russia.

Harty, mechanical engineer, who went to Russia last August to investigate rolling mills in Siberia, had much to say, and little of it was complimentary to the Soviet or the so-called five-year plan of social and industrial rehabilitation.

"The five-year plan is not collapsing," Harty remarked. "It has collapsed. The people are in rage. There is depression everywhere."

"I prefer Irish linen and every shirt I have comes from Belfast," said His Majesty, when, with Queen Mary, he visited an exhibition of the Linen Industry Research Association in London, England.

Britain's Naval Program

Dropping Away Behind France and Italy, Which Causes Alarm

Indications that the Labor Government is becoming concerned over the naval construction programs of other powers were again forthcoming from Rt. Hon. A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, in a speech at Newcastle, England.

"We have pleaded for disarmament," the first lord said. "I think you can go too quickly in this matter unless you can get other countries in Europe to go as quickly as you. You will find that this decline in our naval expenditures, and a steady rise in almost every other country. You begin to ask whether it is a sane policy."

In the House of Commons a few days ago the first lord pointed out that if Italy and France continued to increase their naval construction programs, Great Britain would have to reconsider her aim. While the British program, following the ordinary replacement requirements, has only 48,000 tons under construction, France has 100,484 tons under way, and Italy 100,777 tons.

The British construction program is well under the replacement of new construction that Great Britain may legitimately carry out under the terms of the London Naval Treaty.

When the King Travels

First Class Fare and Payment For Royal Train Is Collected

Most people believe that the royal train is the property of the King and that he and the other members of the royal family travel free. That is not the case. Each of the four railway groups maintains a train for the special use of the King and Queen, and when it is in commission the King pays 13s. 4d. a mile in addition to first-class fare for all the royal party and the members of the suite and the household who accompany them. The royal train is fitted with every imaginable contrivance for comfort. The color scheme of the interior includes much gold and white. Polished teak double doors open on to a square vestibule which leads to the King's smoking room. The furniture of this room is in handsome mahogany upholstered in apple-green Morocco leather. Next to the smoking room is the day compartment, where the furniture is covered in great silk rug and Jacobean tapestry. Then comes the King's bedroom with antiseptic floor. Further on is the bathroom, which was installed during the war when their Majesties lived in the train for a week at a time, visiting munition factories and other centres of activity. The Queen's saloon has a color scheme of her favorite blue. The preparation is necessary before the royal journey starts. Next before the train is timed to pass those places at which there are level-crossings the gates are locked. For half an hour before the train enters any given section all shunting operations stop and all things are arranged to see that everything is clear of the main line. To forestall difficulties created by breakdown of signals or a sudden fog, provision is made for the progress of the train to be signalled mile by mile by lamp and flag.

Indians Predict Trouble

Say Horror Will Follow Removal Of Skeleton at Orlia, Ontario

"There will be horror in Orlia, you will see." These are the ominous words of Indians on the Ramik River, near there, following the removal of the ancient skeleton shortly after its discovery by workmen. The skeleton, the Indians claim, was that of a romantically-buried Indian girl, and its discovery was followed by a further find of a male skeleton within a few feet of the first.

"She was a maiden who lost her lover in war," the Indians say. "She died a maiden and she was buried away from her people, alone on a hill, so that her lover might come to her. Maybe he did come. We do not know. But through the long years she lay there a Peeping Tom has been watching. That alone would make the Manitou mad. Now white men break up her bones, disturb her grave. There will be horror in Orlia. You will see."

Developing Personality

Complexity Of Pattern That We Are Weaving Day By Day Throughout Our Life

"Personality"? How much of it does a man bring into the world with him, how much is due to other factors such as education, early environment? An attempt at a scientific determination of what constitutes personality was made at an "adolescence conference" held at Cleveland, Ohio.

It has been said that an individual's personality reflects not only himself and his experiences, but the nature and experience of his family, his race, and his species. If, in fact, personality consists of the sum total of all the reactions of the individual, it may be divided into two groups—first, the general endowment of the individual, and second, the reaction patterns developed in utero and during the development in the environment in which he finds himself.

The endowment consists in what he brings into the world with him, his nervous system, stature, form, strength, aesthetic qualities, instincts and tendencies more or less innate that are common to his peculiar race. And his reaction to environments depends upon these.

The investigation of cultural factors in the development of personality has produced a number of books of value such as "The Young Thomas," a study made by W. I. Thomas, and "The Jack-Holler, a Delinquent Boy's Own Story," written by Clifford H. Shaw. The latter volume is a document of nearly 200 pages written by the youth himself and showing the process of change from the social type of the criminal to the social type of the law-abiding citizen.

Personality goes deep. It began to appear in the lower forms, but came to fuller flower in the higher animals, the personality of dogs, horses and cats being too human to need mention. Man, of course, shows the greatest variety, resulting in the dramatic play of human life as we know it. Persons is the Latin word for "mask," the thing one speaks through.

The individual—the real man—lies deeper. The personality results from an attempt of the individual, with whatever endowment he may have, to meet adequately the needs of the environment. Many of the reaction patterns established in childhood persist.

With greater age, many of the old reaction patterns are discarded and new and strikingly different reactions utilized. Adjustments to social, business and family life are necessary.

It is a complicated pattern of a personality that we are weaving day by day throughout life. Yet we finally attain to not only for ourselves, but for the general good or evil. Some consideration of the pattern would seem to be the sensible course for a reasonable being.—Minneapolis Journal.

Police In Canada Efficient

Law Enforcement In Canada Is Worthy Of Praise

It would appear from a survey of a report recently issued by the Canadian Government Bureau of Statistics for the calendar year 1929, that the police and law enforcement officials in Canada are on to their jobs.

Statistics collected from cities and towns having a population of 4,000 and over show that in 138 such centres with a total population of 3,369,701 the number of police officers employed was 5,001; one officer to every 671 persons. Summonses issued for infractions of the laws during the year numbered 168,932; and 127,627 arrests were made, an average of 29 arrests per officer. Offences reported to the police numbered 329,496; there were 263,235 cases, 211,321 of which 61 per cent. of which resulted in convictions. Of the 11,160 automobiles reported stolen, 40, 10 or over 90.9 per cent. were recovered. The value of other goods stolen was $2,390,972, and the value of goods recovered was $1,525,089.

Increase In Oil Production

Alberta Oil Production Is Decidedly On The Up Grade

Oil production in the Province of Alberta is decidedly on the up grade, according to the figures for 1930 recently compiled by the Provincial Government. The total output in 1930 was 1,433,844 barrels, compared with 990,132 in 1929.

The production for the month of December, 1930, was the largest for a single month that has yet been made in Alberta, 175,572 barrels, a gain of $1,318 over the corresponding month of the previous year. Most of the oil produced in Canada comes from Alberta. The Province of Ontario produces for 125,000 barrels of the total production.

Experiments In Government

Working Out Of Three Different Ideals May Have Profound Effect On Human Welfare

Three great experiments in the realm of government, which may have far reaching effect on human welfare, are in progress in the world today in Russia, Italy and the British Empire, said Mr. Justice W. M. Martin, in his presidential address to the Mathematical Association at the Saskatchewan court of appeal, addressing the Vancouver Canadian Club recently. "Canadian autonomy," was his subject.

The British experiment, said the speaker, giving each of the nations in the Commonwealth complete control of its own destinies, was the greatest experiment in democratic government, the world had ever seen. It bore no real resemblance to any other political organization ever existing.

In contrast with this democratic experiment, the political, economic and social theories being applied in Russia, no doubt represent the principles and even the instincts of Britishers, were yet a great experiment in the governing of 150,000,000 people. Its success or failure must have a far reaching effect upon the people of Europe and Asia and to a lesser extent on other nations of the world.

Success or failure of the Fascist theory in Italy similarly must have a great effect upon the history of southeastern Europe.

Tracing the declarations of Dominion status that came from the last two imperial conferences, Mr. Justice Martin gave a detailed history of events in Canada connected with growth of the idea of autonomy.

Gradually and constitutionally, control of Canadian affairs passed from the British Government to the government of Canada; even control of military matters passed to Canada at the time of the last war. As regards foreign war in Great Britain, Canada was free to send or not to send troops and the British might decide, and the British government reserved only the right, in the event of great necessity, to recruit for the imperial army in Canada and to place soldiers here.

The international position of Canada under the system of autonomy was the most difficult, and as yet, the most uncertain question, but it was being worked out successfully in a spirit of good will, the speaker said.

A movement to establish a zoo in Belfast, Ireland, is being hotly fought on the ground that caging wild animals is cruel.

A Friend to Women

At a time when the world is so full of trouble, it is good to know that there is a friend to women.

Professor Albert Einstein, discussing some difficult problems with professors of mathematics, told of an incident on a Berlin street car. When immersed in thoughts of high equations, he absentmindedly gave the wrong change to the conductor, and was greeted with the impatient exclamation: "Why don't you go to school and learn some arithmetic?"

Old Ideas Revived

Tests in the depths of the Pacific Ocean have shown that the water is remarkably uniform in salinity as far down as 10,000 fathoms.

General Sir Arthur Currie Unveils Memorial At Delhi, India

The solemn inauguration of India's great new capital, a magnificent conception planned in years ago, commenced with the unveiling of "Our Great Columns" that have been offered by the four largest dominions of the Empire.

Lord Irwin, the retiring viceroy, officiated, and General Sir Arthur Currie, principal of McGill University, Montreal, presented the Canadian column on behalf of the Canadian people. It is one of four at the corners of a great raised court in front of the main building. In 1928 it was arranged that Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa would provide a column to be unveiled on the occasion of the opening.

The Canadian parliament appropriated $2,000 for the purpose. The columns are ancient Achaia in design, named after the Buddhist emperor of India the third century B.C. The architect is Sir Herbert Baker. The columns are massive monoliths of Indian stone. Addressing a large and distinguished gathering, the viceroy said: "Nineteen years ago the King Emperor proclaimed the decision to build a new imperial capital at Delhi. Today we meet to mark the formal completion of that work."

In laying the foundation stone of the new capital, His Majesty expressed a desire that the plan of the building to be erected should be considered with deliberation and care, so that the new creation might be in every way worthy of the historic character of its surroundings.

"Standing here we can surely say that His Majesty's commands have been observed."

The viceroy expressed the deep gratitude of India to the governments of the Dominions "for their generosity and good will in offering the symbolic columns. He prayed that they would forever stand as evidence of the unity of the empire."

Carbon Monoxide May Have Killed Explorer

Stefansson Believes Andrew Overcome By Fumes From Snow

Vilhjalmur Stefansson, writing in "The Spectator," lifts a corner of the curtain which enshrouds the death of Sakuma August Andrew, who never returned from his polar balloon expedition of 1917.

Andrew and K. Fraenkel, whose bodies were found in the wastes last August, were overcome by the subtle fumes of carbon monoxide as they sat at a kerosene stove in their virtually air-tight tent, Stefansson believes.

He developed his theory from evidence discovered on Wednesbury where the bodies of the explorers and the remains of N. Strindberg, another member of the expedition, were found. He almost died himself of the cause, Stefansson writes, in an Eskimo snowhouse on Coronation Gulf 20 years ago.

Most People Catch Cold

Many Colds Could Be Avoided By Proper Food Selection

It has been estimated that approximately 85 per cent. of the American people suffer from a cold or influenza sometime during each year. Some who are more unfortunate than others manage to catch cold half a dozen times between the first of January and the last of December.

It is interesting to note the hand writing on the wall that announces an epidemic in any certain section. The sale of lemon juice increases enormously almost overnight, for the hot lemonade has long been recognized as one of the first aids to call upon when the little cold germs begin to bother the body.

Many colds could be avoided if we kept constipation far removed from us. Plenty of rough foods, green leafy vegetables, fresh fruits and fruit juices, and also milk should be secured by everyone, particularly when a cold epidemic is in the neighborhood.

"I know where you can get chicken dinner for 15 cents."

"Where?"

"At the feed store."

Toronto, says the Brandon Sun, is one of the coldest cities in Ontario, Quebec and in some cases.

CHILDREN CRY FOR IT—

CHILDREN hate to take medicine as a rule, but every child loves the taste of Castoria. And this pure vegetable preparation is just as good as laxatives; just as bland and just as harmless as the mildest foods.

When Baby's cry warns of colic, a few drops of Castoria has him soothed, asleep again in a jiffy. Nothing is more valuable in diarrhea. When colic or constipation or bad breath lead to constipation, laxative for a child to cleanse and regulate a child's bowels. In colds or children's diseases, you should use it to keep the system from clogging.

Castoria is sold in every drugstore; the genuine always bears Chas. H. Fletcher's signature.

Parliamentary Etiquette

Suggested That Vocabulary In Public Life In England Is Rougher Than In The United States

How much rougher the vocabulary of public life in England than in the United States is suggested by the fact that when the Americans, says the New York Times, are at a front-page sensation when a Congressman refers to a United States Senator, several hundred feet away at the other end of the Capitol, as a "liar."

In the House of Commons, England, it is an explicit hard rule that no member of the House is to use such language followed by the speaker's "namely" the offender, and the offender withdrawing the injurious epithet and apologizing to the House.

When etiquette does get itself up in Congress it usually takes the form of action rather than words. Infuriated statesmen plunge at each other with raucous intentions.

When they are angry, they get themselves clapped around the waist by the restraining hands of a couple of friends before it is too late. A British circles the air grows sulphurous when Lady Astor and her dearest enemy, Jack Jones, swing into action. "There is nothing in a man at Washington in a position suggesting that of Ramsay MacDonald," England being called a "boresome" by his face by one of the outside of Winston Churchill. And outside of the Commons there is Lady Houston's letter to the Under-Secretary for Aviation and requesting him by letter to assume a virtuous and noble line in the "manner," or attempting to behave like a gentleman.

Canadian Reindeer Herd

Few Predatory Animals Too Molest Reindeer On Long Journey

Propos of the journey of the herd of reindeer which is being brought by the Dominion Department of the Interior from Alaska to enhance the living conditions of the natives of Northern Canada, there are very few predatory animals to be found on the coast near the line of route from the Alaska-Yukon boundary eastward to Cape Bathurst. Wolves are of very rare occurrence and the only animals that may occasionally give trouble to the reindeer are the Barren Ground grizzly and the Polar bear.

Bishop Has New Idea

The Bishop of London, Dr. Winston Churchill, says the science today seemed to predict a very different end of the world from that described in the New Testament. The probable end of the world would not be by a great fire. It would probably be a frozen death.

"All the books of science which I have read confirm my faith," he said.

Where the Plums Are

"After all, the city government is just like a tree—its officials are merely the branches, and you people are the roots and the trunk." "Aye, true," spoke up one son of the "but you must admit that all the plums grow on the branches."

A naturalist points out that there are more than 500,000 birds in insects, and most of them make no sound that a human being can hear.

Libraries In Canada

Hundreds Of Libraries Give Readers Free Access To Good Literature

Supplementing the work of the various educational institutions of Canada are hundreds of libraries in different parts of the country. In a list of 1925 for which statistics have been collected, 623 are free public and university libraries, 126 are university college or normal school, 52 are Dominion or Provincial Government libraries, and 224 are otherwise classified. Legislation making some provision for public library accommodation exists in each of the provinces, as well as in the Yukon; and all of the larger centres of population have libraries free to all. Smaller settlements, especially those in frontier places, such as mining and lumber camps, are reached by travelling libraries under the management of the Provincial Governments, or universities. In each of the provinces legislation is in existence to facilitate the establishment or expansion of libraries in the public schools, and many of these institutions have very considerable collections.

Diver Likes Synthetic Air

Increases Efficiency Says Engineer Known Submarine Work

"Synthetic air," composed of helium and oxygen, as a means of sustaining the respiration of deep sea divers, has received the O.K. of Captain Sloan Danenhower, widely known submarine and salvage engineer.

Captain Danenhower, who will command the Wilkins submarine "Nautilus" on its undersea dash to the North Pole this summer, made a diving test at the Philadelphia navy yard in which "synthetic air" was used instead of Mother Nature's atmosphere.

"The advantage of using helium-oxygen," he explained, "will increase the efficiency of divers as to the depth they can go, the time they can work under the surface and the speed with which they can get through the decompression process."

After 10 Years Of Asthma Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy proved the only relief for one grateful user, and that is but one case among many. Little wonder that it has now become the most famous of all remedies on the market. It has earned its fame by its long and effective record of curing it today, as it has done for years. It is the greatest asthma specific within the grasp of suffering humanity.

A Clever Retort

While on his visit to this country, Marshal Rich was a guest at a party, when one of the other guests took exception to French politeness. "There is nothing in a man at Washington in a position suggesting that of Ramsay MacDonald," England being called a "boresome" by his face by one of the outside of Winston Churchill. And outside of the Commons there is Lady Houston's letter to the Under-Secretary for Aviation and requesting him by letter to assume a virtuous and noble line in the "manner," or attempting to behave like a gentleman.

A Real Celebration

Here's a short story on longevity. Mrs. C. H. Jones, 80, of Cornwall, Vermont; Mrs. Jane Crann, 90, and Mrs. John J. Lacy, both of 76, were invited to the wedding of their daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Jewett Boswell, celebrate her 100th birthday. All four sisters are in excellent health.

4 Years without HEADACHE

How do you deal with headaches?

Do you just let something to deaden the pain without getting rid of the trouble? You know the pain? Thousands do, despite the medical profession's advice to "headache pills." Such makeshift methods simply drive the pain deeper into the system. They surely numb the nerves and leave the underlying cause to look after itself. And it only obtains a momentary relief. You know generally that the unsuppressed tension in the system of stagnating waste material thickens the blood. Remove these poisons—prevent them forming again—and you'll never have to worry any more. And that is just how Kneppen's Salts bring swift and lasting relief from headaches. Kneppen's Salts aid Nature to cleanse your body completely of all clogging waste matter.

"For many years I suffered from severe headaches almost daily. I started taking the small dose of Kneppen's Salts for four days, and I can honestly say I have never had a headache since." Mrs. M. W. Phillips.

FREE TRIAL OFFER

If you have never tried Kneppen's Salts it is now a good time to do so. We will send you a small trial package of Kneppen's Salts absolutely free of charge. This package contains everything you need to get the full benefit of Kneppen's Salts. Your doctor is authorized to return the package if you do not wish to try it. What would be the harm? If you experience relief, you will know the value of Kneppen's Salts. 1750, Impresto, McIntosh, B. & L., Toronto.

Little Helps For This Week

"He heals the broken in heart, and bindeth up their wounds."—Psalm cxlvi, 3.

Then sorrow touched by Thine, grows bright.

With more than rapture's ray, As darkness shows its world of light We never see by day.

—Thomas Moore.

Wherein is the blessedness of those that mourn? Christ says, in being comforted. In the victory of their faith, in the endurance of love, trust and patience. Remember until we are thus comforted in our hours of sorrow, we are not one with our Father's Spirit. No one will suppose that the blessing of affliction consists in the suffering it brings. It consists in the spiritual response to a contest of one whose confidence is in the source of love.—John Hamilton Thorne.

Soft corners and warms are ugly, painful and irritating. Remove them quickly and surely with Douglas's Egyptian Liniment.

Original Copy Brings High Price

A rare book dealer, Jerome Brooks, paid $12,000 for a copy of the first issue of "Punch" with a fragment of the original manuscript by Charles Dickens, at an auction of the library of George Thibault of Pine Valley, N.J. The copy fragment belonged to the late George Barr McCutcheon and is one of the 14 "Punch" copies extant.

Fruit acids do not make the diet acid. On the contrary they counteract the acid effects of meat, eggs, bread and cereals, preventing the stomach from becoming too acid or too alkaline.
